THE SCHERMER BULLETIN

One of our customers stopped us last week and asked if she could talk to us in "private." We said sure and this is what she told us. It seems as though she was "hustled" by one of these high pressure "freeze-plan" companies who promised that they could cut her food bills in half. She "fell for the saies pitch and signed the contract. As soon as that first delivery was made she realized she had made a horribre initiate and told the people that she was unhappy.

The company representative gave her a hard time ending with the story that she shouldn't be unhappy because they constantly check Schmuck's, National and Kroger. And, they added where could she buy for less? She told them Schermer's. Well, they replied, we don't check Schermer's, so we don't know anything about them.

We assured the customer that she wasn't the first nor the last to fall for a glib salesman's pitch. We complimented her on being able to recognize her "bad deal" immediately and to get out as soon as possible.

The point of the whole episode is this. THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS A "PREE LUNCH!"
With Supermarket profits being what they are, there is no way, REPEAT NO WAY, for anyone to assey out 90% on your food hill. Or, even Ilor 15%, We don't make any such claims because

Tips on buying an energy-wise home

Two homes may look alike and be priced alike. But when it comes to using energy, they may be very different. And the difference could not only waste energy for heating and cooling but also cause your family neating and cooling but also cause your ramily discomfort in the years ahead.

Most of the signs of a home that uses energy efficiently are not readily visible. You'll have to do some probing. But it's well worth your while to make sure your money is buying a home that's built for energy conservation and total comfort.

A home that meets the standards below will be a better buy. And it will be a more comfortable, quieter and more economical home to live in.
